

In-class adaptations

- Do you offer in-class accommodations for special needs students, and if so, which kinds?

- Do you offer in-class accommodations for students with advanced learning abilities (a particular kind of special need)?

- Does a student need to be formally identified as “gifted” to be given these accommodations?

- What kinds of accommodations do you offer for gifted learners?

- Do you offer accelerated studies or out-of-class enrichment opportunities?

- Are your accommodations offered on a continual basis (so that children will be able to receive them for their entire stay at the school)?

- Exactly what kind of training do your teachers have? What training do they have in gifted education?

- Are your teachers trained to differentiate between students according to learning needs?
